A girl who says a corrupt NYPD detective put her on the street when she was a 13-year-old runaway and forced her to work as a prostitute has filed a $25 million law suit.

The suit accuses Wayne Taylor, a former city narcotics detective of pimping out the Brooklyn youngster and taking money from men who wanted to have sex with her.

The Brooklyn federal court lawsuit, which names the city, the NYPD and the officer, was filed by the girl, who is still a minor, and her mother. The Post is withholding their names.

The cop told the girl that she had been "sold" to him for $500, and then he forced her to dance naked at parties and service adult men in Jan. 2008, the suit says.

And you would know all cops are corrupt how? You have no idea what you're talking about. You're just another cop hater that has no idea about anything. You're just disgruntled for getting arrested. 30,000 cops in this city and you pool them all together. That would be like saying all Black are nothing but criminals. Get your head out the clouds.

Brandon Boyle Your right, not all cops are corrupt, unfortunately they serve the corporations more than the people, they have become oppressive and collect fees for the city and counties for minor offenses. Maybe it is not their call, but they did swear an oath to defend the constitution. As with many people it is easier to go along to get along to keep your job, not just cops.

Lee Fisher ignore him he is one of those cops on J.P. Morgan's payroll defending everything but the average person. His interests are aligned with Wall Street, that would explain why he and his buddies missed the pimping a 13 year old at night extra curricular activities of his former co-worker.

sounds if the cop should've served a lot more time.This is just another reason WHY people are protesting.The Laws are to be uniformly applied, but too often a politician and/or cop gets a way lighter sentence, and the other criminal will get a sentence, fine AND probation.STOP coddling these "officals" criminals!

Now, now folks. We shouldn't jump to conclusions over one bad apple. Most cops are reasonable and judicious pimps.
