Fulton Co. law veteran arrested in Clayton Co. sting

CLAYTON COUNTY, Ga. -- A Fulton County Sheriff's Office captain is facing a charge of prostitution-pandering after an overnight sting in nearby Clayton County.

Walter Lee White was booked into the Clayton County Jail on Friday.

The Fulton County Sheriff's Office said that White was talking with internal affairs on Saturday.

"His status is undetermined at this time while command staff gather more information," Fulton County Sheriff's Office Public Affairs Officer Tracy Flanagan said.

The arrest was part of a multi-phase undercover operation - dubbed Operation Summer Heat - conducted at various locations in Clayton County and resulted in 22 arrests in all -- 12 men for pandering and solicitation of sex for money and 10 women for prostitution.

23 businesses were also cited for selling alcohol to underage individuals.

Clayton County officials said the police department plans more operations and initiatives in the immediate future.

"The operation was a fine example of how effective the Community Oriented Police concept can work by partnering with the community to address their public safety concerns," a department spokesperson said in a media release.
