

Text and poster design by Norma Jean Almodovar ©2014

ISWFACE Presents:
because our lives matter

On Saturday afternoon, September 13, 2014, actress Daniele Watts was in Studio City California, kissing her white boyfriend and talking to her father on her cell phone when a 'concerned citizen' reported a possible prostitute in the area...

The cops arrived, demanded identification from the white male (he complied) and the black 'suspected prostitute' (she did not- she is NOT obliged to show any ID when she has not done anything to warrant police interest in her behavior. Kissing one's boyfriend (of a different race) however passionately in public is still legal. That's when things got ugly.

In 2006, 12 year old Dymond Milburn, was kidnapped by undercover vice cops, in front of her house, suspected of being a prostitute... a 'concerned citizen' called the police to report seeing THREE WHITE

FEMALES allegedly

'soliciting' in this neighborhood. The cops were out hunting for suspected 'victims of sex trafficking' when they spotted Dymond as she walked in front of her own home, going to reset the circuit breaker as her parents asked her to do. What followed was unconscionable.

Who knew that women and children being 'rescued' by cops from potential 'sex trafficking' comes with losing their constitutional rights, being kidnapped/ beaten BY COPS and prosecuted for 'resisting arrest' and for 'assaulting' someone they believed was a kidnapper?

Thanks to the prostitution abolitionists' crusade to 'create awareness' about 'sex trafficking,' good people everywhere are calling the police to help those poor alleged victims, even when the 'victim' is not a prostitute. IF THIS HAPPENS TO WOMEN AND GIRLS WHO AREN'T PROSTITUTES, IMAGINE WHAT THE COPS DO TO THOSE OF US WHO ARE?

Thanks to liberal democrat politicians in California, the police can arrest a person whom they merely suspect 'possesses the intent to commit prostitution.' Here's what the law says:

CA Penal code: 653.22. (a) It is unlawful for any person to loiter in any public place with the intent to commit prostitution. This intent is evidenced by acting in a manner and under circumstances which openly demonstrate the purpose of inducing, enticing, or soliciting prostitution, or procuring another to commit prostitution.

(b) Among the circumstances that may be considered in determining whether a person loiters with the intent to commit prostitution are that the person:

653.20 (1) Repeatedly beckons to, stops, engages in conversations with, or attempts to stop or engage in conversations with passersby, indicative of soliciting for prostitution.

UM, LIKE A BLACK FEMALE KISSING A WHITE MALE????
Yup, apparently that's 'acting in a manner' of a prostitute...

WHAT IS A PUBLIC PLACE?
653.20 (b) "Public place" means an area open to the public, or an alley, plaza, park, driveway, or parking lot, or an automobile, whether moving or not...

Cops can stop you while you are driving down the street? YES THEY CAN!

Read more about "D'jango Unchained" actress Daniele Watts' encounter with the LAPD here: <http://www.latimes.com/local/lanow/la-me-ln-django-unchained-daniele-watts-lapd-20140915-story.html>

"When Dymond went outside the house toward the breaker box, a blue van drove up to the house and three men jumped out and start attacking her. One of the men grabbed Dymond and said "You're a prostitute. You're coming with me." Dymond resisted being pulled into a van with complete strangers. Dymond grabbed a tree and started yelling "Daddy, Daddy, Daddy."

Officer David Roark had his hand over the mouth of Milburn when her father came out on the balcony after hearing his daughter's cries for help. The other officers, Justin Popovich and Sean Stewart, beat Dymond's face, head and throat while their supervisor, Sgt. Gilbert Gomez, watched on in approval.

Dymond's parents approached the cops and said "That's our daughter. She's twelve." Roark responded "I don't care if she's twenty-two, thirty-two, or forty-six." [so, a whore is a whore is a whore, regardless of their age, if the cops say they are....]

The cops dragged Dymond into the van. Obviously they were now well aware that the kidnapping they had intended had gone wrong, so they decided to drop Dymond off at a hospital.

The examining physician found that the girl had injuries from multiple blows to the head, face, neck, lower back, left shoulder, and left hip/waist area. She suffered a contusion to the back of the head (where she was struck with a flashlight). There were abrasions on her arm and wrist. Dymond's throat was swollen; she had difficulty swallowing, nausea and vomiting, and hoarseness of voice due to being struck in the throat. She had black eyes, scalp lacerations, tenderness of the vertebrae. She was experiencing double vision and loss of hearing. Dymond's ear drum and nose were also injured (blood in ear, bruised nasal septum, and nose bleed).

When she finally healed enough (physically) to return to school a horrible surprise was waiting for her. Police showed up to Austin Middle School and arrested Dymond for resisting and assaulting a peace officer. A twelve year old girl!

In a blatant disregard of logic and common sense, the court system in Galveston felt these charges were justified and Milburn was actually charged with assault on an officer and tried, twice! After three years and two mistrials, the DA finally dropped her case."

Read more at <http://thefreethoughtproject.com/cops-beat-kidnap-12-yo-girl-front-home-claiming-prostitute/#wxdeWltlo2YwCbVB.99>

No- PLEASE DON'T!

"If You See Something, Say Something"
The outrageous consequences of laws giving cops the power to 'rescue' women and girls- against their will- from the 'horrors' of 'sex trafficking'

